1 VERMONT MEDICAL SOCIETY RESOLUTION 2 Vermont Medical Society Policy on End-of-life-Care 3 As adopted at the VMS Annual Meeting on November 4, 2017 4 5 6 7 NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the VMS revise and update its Policy of Physician Assisted Suicide to read: 8 9 VERMONT MEDICAL SOCIETY POLICY ON END-OF-LIFE CARE 10 11 12 The Vermont Medical Society supports access to high quality end-of-life care. 13 14 Our physicians actively endorse comprehensive palliative care, which includes: the use of state 15 of the art pain and symptom control; the provision of secure and supportive environments through Hospice; and the freedom of the patient to choose or refuse all medical treatment. 16 17 18 Physicians and other health care practitioners must aggressively respond to the needs of patients at the end of life. Patients should not be abandoned once it is determined that cure is 19 impossible. Multidisciplinary interventions should be sought including specialty consultation, 20 hospice care, pastoral support, family counseling, and other modalities. Patients near the end of 21 22 life should continue to receive emotional support, good communication, comfort care and 23 adequate pain control. Their autonomy should be respected. 24 25 Even when physicians use all the tools at hand to care for pain and suffering, a small number of patients still suffer. Each of these patients is unique; each one of the patients will challenge the 26 27 caregiver's skills in the extreme; and each one's care should be highly individualized and 28 decided in private amongst the patient, physician and family. The Vermont Medical Society 29 recognizes that medical aid in dying, in the form of Vermont Act 39, is a legal option that could be made in the context of the physician-patient relationship. Recognizing that principled 30 physicians disagree about the ethics of Act 39, the Vermont Medical Society is committed to 31 protecting its members' freedom to decide whether to participate in medical aid in dying 32 33 according to their own values and beliefs. 34 The Vermont Medical Society is actively engaged in promoting initiatives that assure all dying 35 Vermonters receive good, comprehensive palliative care. These include ensuring that all members of the Society become educated in the goals and techniques of palliative care and that
